

Sovereign Hills Volunteers Strengthen 2008 Ironman

Some 1,800 Sovereign Hills Volunteers will give up their time to support the 2008 Panthers Ironman Triathlon being held in Port Macquarie on 6 April.

Proudly sponsored by the Sovereign Hills development team, the volunteers will perform a range of duties that make the day successful from registering athletes to manning drink stations and managing traffic flow.

Port Macquarie has hosted the annual Ironman and Half Ironman events for the past three years.

This year, more than 1,800 competitors will participate in the race which includes a 3.8 kilometre swim, 180.2 kilometre bike-ride and a 42.2 kilometre run.

“The Ironman is a terrific event for the local community and one that puts Port Macquarie on the map with participants from more than 30 countries,” said Mr Robert Yandell, Director of The Lewis Land Group developing Sovereign Hills.

“The Sovereign Hills Volunteers are vital to the smooth running of the day and Sovereign Hills is proud to support them for the third year in a row.”
